A-10. Panel: Baseball and Pilgrims
Our panel will discuss the works of two significant American writers from the Pittsburgh area: August Wilson and Annie Dillard. Wilson’s Pulitzer Prize winning play, Fences, uses baseball as a metaphor for racial frustration in the Pittsburgh area. We will compare his use of metaphor to Annie Dillard’s Pulitzer Prize winning collection of essays, Pilgrim at Tinker Creek, which is also peppered with scenes and images of Pennsylvania.

Joanne Eckert
Northwest Nazarene (ID)

Susanna Jandzinski
Northwest Nazarene (ID)

Carol Lenz
Northwest Nazarene (ID)

Brenna Monahan
Northwest Nazarene (ID)

A-13. Panel: Using and/or Abusing Wikipedia in the Classroom
The Online Facilitator for the Wikimedia Foundation’s Public Policy Initiative will explain and moderate this session on the use and abuse of Wikipedia in the classroom.

Panel moderator: Dr. Michel Aaij, Auburn Montgomery
Sage Ross, Wikipedia Ambassador
Online Facilitator for the Wikimedia Foundation

Moving from an overview of the status of women in Post-World War II America, this panel will discuss the roles, contributions, and predicaments of the female in the Beat Generation where the problems of patriarchal hegemony, far from being left behind, thrived. Figures include Joyce Johnson, Denise Levertov, Diane DiPrima, Bonnie Bremer, and Carolyn Cassady.

Carly Glasmyre
Alvernia University (PA)

Emily Rabadi
Alvernia University (PA)

Michael Wagner
Alvernia University (PA)

Rebecca Wisniewski
Alvernia University (PA)

A-16. Panel: Loss of Self in the Dark Romantics
This panel will apply various themes of Dark Romanticism (loss of self, loss of religion and faith, destruction of the self, and evil) to popular culture, included in the discussion are Poe, Hawthorne, Melville and Dickinson.

Samantha Stokes
Sacred Heart University (CT)

Katie Nichols
Sacred Heart University (CT)

Samuel Siliman
Sacred Heart University (CT)

Amanda Perez
Sacred Heart University (CT)

C-10. Panel: From the Classical to the Modern
It has been said that humanity’s intellectual tradition—of literature, art, philosophy, and history—is a great conversation, wherein ideas are disseminated and discussed, ideas of virtue and nobility or of suffering and pain, ideas about how we know and how we are to live. Our intellectual tradition began with the laws and writings of the Babylonians and Egyptians, and soared with the successive Greek and Roman civilizations of the classical world. Our own contemporary intellectual tradition is the descendent of the Greco-Roman world, built upon its foundations. Despite the rich cultural and philosophical history of the classical texts, they are rarely taught outside of universities’ honors programs or Classics department. We posit that the English department is the best arena in which to study the classics in the university at large outside of the Classics department—for what department is more interdisciplinary, reading history and philosophy amongst literature? This panel aims to examine the rich interplay between texts and ideals of the classical world and contemporary literature, film, and criticism. By doing so, we hope to demonstrate the resplendent benefits to be gained by teaching classical literature and thought in the English department.

Panel Moderator: Dr. Brian Johnson, Samford University

Lindsey Crider
Samford University (AL)

Katie Ormsbee
Samford University (AL)

Deborah Rodriguez
Samford University (AL)

Steven Thomas
Samford University (AL)

C-13. Panel: The Blinking Cursor is Our Nemesis
In a discussion-based presentation, we will canvass several options for getting past writer’s block, including: review techniques, free writing, reader v. writer-based prose, etc.

Janelle Bartholomew
La Sierra University (CA)

Rebecca Renee Hess
La Sierra University (CA)

Kendra Kravig
La Sierra University (CA)

Erica Szilagyi
La Sierra University (CA)
C-14. Panel: A Guide to Writing the Steel City
Thursday 3:05-4:20  Kings Garden South

A discussion of small presses in the Pittsburgh area.

Panel Moderator: Anne Rashid, Carlow University

Katelyn Britton  Carlow University (PA)
John Fantin  Carlow University (PA)
Liz Gowers  Carlow University (PA)
Taylor Grieshober  Carlow University (PA)

C-15. Panel: What do You do With a B.A. in English?
Thursday 3:05-4:20  Brigade

A discussion of career opportunities and skills gained from an English Major or Minor and how to apply to various professions including Teaching and programs such as Speak for America and teaching English abroad.

Alyssa Chrisman  Central Michigan University (MI)
Catherine Bride Macdonald  Central Michigan University (MI)
Kaylee Shelton  Central Michigan University (MI)
Brittany Smith  Central Michigan University (MI)
Trisha Tonge  Central Michigan University (MI)

C-16. Panel: Creative Nonfiction That Gives Voice to the Voiceless Beyond the US Shores
Thursday 3:05-4:20  Rivers

Many of us have traveled abroad alone. Some of us do so to serve the community in which we live for a bit, some do so to study at a foreign institution, but all who travel and live abroad gain self-knowledge and academic and intellectual diversity. Each of the three panelists will present a work of creative nonfiction that seeks to “go beyond words, providing pleasure, but also instructing and serving, giving voice to people and causes and ideas,” as the description of the theme for the 2011 Convention states. be followed by a discussion facilitated by the moderator among those attending the panel, who will be invited to share their observations and lessons from their traveling alone while abroad.

Panel Moderator: Dr. Simone J. Billings, Santa Clara University

Julianne Parayo  Santa Clara University (CA)
Tanya Schmidt  Santa Clara University (CA)
Hilary Titus  Santa Clara University (CA)

Panels Session D: Friday March 25 8:00-8:55

D-10. Panel: Invisible Culture
Friday 8:00-8:55  Benedum

The papers on this panel all explore cultural artifacts (etiquette books, pulp magazines, medical books) from the past in order to see what they reveal about the culture that created and purchased them.

Panel Moderator: Dr. Deb VanderBilt, St. John Fisher College

Dena Beacham  St. John Fisher College (NY)
Sarah Christy  St. John Fisher College (NY)
Maria Quebral  St. John Fisher College (NY)
Samantha Maley  St. John Fisher College (NY)

D-13. Panel: Coming to The Convention as a Crowd
Friday 8:00-8:55  Kings Garden North

A discussion of how the Alpha Epsilon Alpha chapter makes coming to the annual conference one of our goals and incorporate a series of activities on how we get there and what we do when we return.

Panel Moderators: Diane Steinberg and Felicia Jean Steele, The College of New Jersey

Kristen Casabona  The College of New Jersey (NJ)
Allison Greer  The College of New Jersey (NJ)
Allison Hoefer  The College of New Jersey (NJ)
Rebecca McNulty  The College of New Jersey (NJ)
Nicole Pieri  The College of New Jersey (NJ)
Todd Petty  The College of New Jersey (NJ)
Panels Session E: Friday 25 March 9:05-10:00

E-13. Panel: Literary Spaces in Motion: (De)Constructing the Stage and Page
A panel that explores the 2011 Convention's theme, "Beyond Words"

Georgette Arato University of Massachusetts at Boston (MA)
Bronwen Evans University of Massachusetts at Boston (MA)
Trina Greeley University of Massachusetts at Boston (MA)

E-14. Panel: Masculinity Doesn't Make the Man
A panel that explores the male characters in the works of young adult literature writer, S. E. Hinton

Aaron Barger University of Arkansas at Little Rock (AR)
Samuel Brown University of Arkansas at Little Rock (AR)
Deannah Johnson University of Arkansas at Little Rock (AR)

E-15. Panel: Material Objects in Modern Consciousness
A panel that explores new voices in literature since 1900

Panel Moderator: Dr. Elizabeth C. Inglesby, The University of Montevallo

Jayce Cosper The University of Montevallo (AL)
Rachel Daniel The University of Montevallo (AL)
Jamie King The University of Montevallo (AL)

In this panel Sigma Kappa Delta students share their experiences with transformative texts.

Panel Moderator: Trish Stubblefield, Cottey College

Blake Bivens Calhoun Community College (AL)
Kathleen Padilla Calhoun Community College (AL)
Olivia Dodd Northeast Alabama Community College (AL)

Panels Session F: Friday 25 March 2:00-3:20

F-6. Panel: Be Smart and Serve
Outstanding and award winning chapters will describe service projects that promote literacy and promote service as a crucial component of the educated life. Projects to be described include literacy work with refugee groups, writing contests for children and young adults, Reading for the Cure, and many other projects. Other chapters are strongly encouraged to attend and share their service activities.

Panel Moderator: Gloria Hochstein, The University of Wisconsin Eau Claire

Lindsey Bramson, Alpha Omicron Omicron, Northwest Nazarene University (ID)
Meredith Molnar and Ashlyn Wells, Theta Zeta University of Wisconsin Eau Claire (WI)
Darril Marshall, Xi Lambda Johnson C. Smith University (NC)
Antonio Byrd, Omicron Psi Auburn University Montgomery (AL)
Rebecca Diehl, Rho Iota Clarion University (PA)
Kathryn Brenzel and Todd Petty, Alpha Epsilon Alpha The College of New Jersey (NJ)
F-10. Panel: Embracing Arabic Poetry and Poetics
Friday 2:00-3:20  Benedum

Inspired by Lorene Cary’s story of seeking identity in an “all-white” environs “of the elite” we humbly seek to insert Arabic poetry into the cacophony of sound and literature. Our panel celebrates the work of famous poets such Al-Mutanbi and Al-Khansa’a as well as the works we have created ourselves.

Panel Moderator: Dr. Kathy Nixon  American University of Kuwait

Noura Al-Ajmi  American University of Kuwait, Kuwait
Iman Askar  American University of Kuwait, Kuwait
Dana Al-Failakawi  American University of Kuwait, Kuwait
Fatima Ibraheem  American University of Kuwait, Kuwait

F-13. Panel: Beyond Words: Film Adaptations of Literature
Friday 2:00-3:20  Brigade

Students fresh from a senior seminar on Film Adaptation of Literature explore how and in what ways films can go beyond the words of a written text and at what possible costs or with what kinds of benefits. They invite discussion of their project reports, which explore relevant issues in adaptation studies from theoretical, pedagogical, aesthetic and critical perspectives.

Panel Moderator: Peter A. Scholl, Luther College

Hannah Crippen  Luther College (IA)
Lauren Haefemeyer  Luther College (IA)
Madeline Jungbauer  Luther College (IA)
Julia Catherine Walk  Luther College (IA)
Camille Rose Welter  Luther College (IA)

F-14. Panel: A Novel Writing Competition in the Southern Region
Friday 2:00-3:20  Rivers

The panel will describe the organization and execution of a Sigma Tau Delta sponsored competition inspired by the National Novel Writing Month competition. The two finalists will read a selection from their submission, and the winner will be announced. The finalists are Andrew Wellman (U of South Florida, Sarasota) and

Panel Moderator: Michel Aaij, Auburn University Montgomery

Sarah Fredericks  Auburn University Montgomery (AL)
Roger Stanley  Union University (TN)

Panels Session G: Friday 25 March 3:30-4:25

G-10. Panel: Constructing HEL
Friday 3:30-4:25  Benedum

This panel brings two Sigma Tau Delta chapters together to consider the role of History of the English Language (HEL) in the future of literary studies. The panel will invite audience members to reflect upon how they define and implement literary study, situating HEL in context with theoretical approaches and evolving research methodologies. Central to the discussion is the HEL question: how should it be taught, given its broad knowledge base, pulling from the disciplines of linguistics, geography, history, grammar, and literature? Ultimately, the panelists wish to consider how the history of English shapes not only literature but also the research of literature.

Panel Moderator: Dr. Sayre Greenfield, The University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg

Dr. Lauryn S. Mayer  Washington and Jefferson College (PA)
Deidre Stuffer  University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg (PA)
Corey Florindi  University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg (PA)
Joseph Saccamago  University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg (PA)

G-13. Panel: Scholarly Applications of Fantasy Literature
Friday 3:30-4:25  Brigade

Fantasy literature is more than just elves, dragons, and wizardry; it is a fanciful visual vehicle which portrays literary themes in a way that highlights rather than diminishes their bearing on the real world. This panel will focus on the merits of fantasy literature, including its heavy use of symbolism and characterization, as well as its own usefulness as a platform from which to understand literary critique and analysis. We will outline and briefly discuss a short history of fantasy literature, beginning with its roots in myth and legend, continuing through famous texts such as The Lord of the Rings and The Chronicles of Narnia, and finishing with contemporary texts, as well as discussing important aspects of the genre such as critical world building and discerning use of tropes in plot construction.

Panel Moderator: Gloria Hochstein, The University of Wisconsin Eau Claire

Amanda Lonsdorf  The University of Wisconsin Eau Claire (WI)
Tania Richter  The University of Wisconsin Eau Claire (WI)
Ashlyn Wells  The University of Wisconsin Eau Claire (WI)
H-13. Panel: From Text to Film Text: The Adaptions of Alfred Hitchcock

Alfred Hitchcock is one of cinema’s most celebrated directors, and while many of his films feature original screenplays by writers like Ben Hecht (Notorious) and Thornton Wilder (Shadow of A Doubt), some of his best films are adaptations of previously published literary works. Our panel will discuss how Hitchcock crafts such film texts, and how his direction, cinematographic decisions, and critical interpretation of source

Panel Moderator: Dr. Jeffrey Bersett, Westminster College

Matthew Bower
Kelly Lake
Ryan Sargent

Westminster College (PA)

H-14. Panel: Young Adult Literature Potpourri

“Young Adult Literature Potpourri” will analyze the trends of young adult literature and how they have varied since the genre’s popularity has grown. We will investigate how the language of the genre has been reshaped by technology and what this means for the “young adults” devouring the novels. By determining its impact on youth, we will suggest how to use young adult literature for the modern generation of students in secondary schools.

Panel Moderator: Dr. Kevin Stemenler, Clarion University

Jayna Fox
Barbara Murray
Amanda Turnbull

Clarion University (PA)

H-15. Panel: Fostering Critical Thinking and Reflective Learning in English Courses

This interactive workshop session will engage both panelists and audience in a conversation about how to get beyond words in exams and essays and beyond routine classroom pedagogy to enhance critical thinking skills and reflective learning in English courses. Starting with a brief model of the learning process and a view of various definitions of critical thinking, facilitators will offer several tips for developing critical thinking and creativity in English courses through strategies such as online reflective writing forums, dramatization and role play, seminar reports, creative collaborative projects, application of learning through excursions, “reflective learning moments,” learning portfolio strategies, and other methods. The audience will be involved in generating additional ideas by sharing techniques, assignments, activities that work (or do not work) in different English courses.

Panel Moderator: Dr. John Zubizarreta, Columbia College

Keely Fagan
Nicole Hill
Sarah Martin
Chelsea Rhodes
Katie Rose

Columbia College (SC)
This panel will look at censorship in universities, exploring topics such as students attempting to censor classroom material, teachers censoring student writing and/or topics, censorship and campus publications, and censorship awareness. The panel is made up of both teachers and students who have all had to deal with this complicated issue in their own lives and on their campus. In addition, all of the members of this panel participated in a campus awareness project for banned books week which will also be discussed.

Panel Moderator: Leigh Rouks, Southeastern Louisiana University

Heidi Wilson
Southeastern Louisiana University (LA)

Rebecca Murry
Southeastern Louisiana University (LA)

Austin Payne
Southeastern Louisiana University (LA)

Christopher Cook
Southeastern Louisiana University (LA)

This panel seeks to explore the reasons and ways to incorporate queer texts, including literature about cross-dressing, transsexual, and transgendered individuals, into the classroom. By offering explanations of LGBTQA concepts, suggesting texts and lesson ideas, and discussing the possibilities these texts provide, this panel hopes to encourage the use of queer literature as a way to understand gender, biologic sex, sexuality, and identity issues from an additional perspective.

Panel Moderator: Cathy Rex, University of Wisconsin- Eau Claire

Kristin Frosch
University of Wisconsin- Eau Claire (WI)

Kristin Chang
University of Wisconsin- Eau Claire (WI)

Amanda Hendricks
University of Wisconsin- Eau Claire (WI)

Andrew Storsveen
University of Wisconsin- Eau Claire (WI)

I-10. Panel: Theory: What is it Good For?
Saturday 9:30-10:50  Benedum

Literary theory has been disparaged of late. In spite of numerous attacks, not only do undergraduate English programs continue to require formal instruction in literary theory; even introductory general education literature courses have become increasingly concerned with lit theory and its implications. Regardless of one’s personal feelings about theory, the role it has played in shaping the contemporary state of the English discipline cannot be denied. But—beyond an historical understanding of major theorists and critical movements—what possible benefits can studying literary theory have for English majors? This panel will explore this topic.

Panel Moderator: Marybeth Davis, Liberty University

Alicia Allen
Liberty University (VA)

Olivia Blessing
Liberty University (VA)

Rachel Hart
Liberty University (VA)

Brooke Light
Liberty University (VA)

I-13. Panel: Re-Mixing the Masters
Saturday 9:30-10:50  Kings Garden North

As students analyze older literary texts in the undergraduate classroom, they also draw significant parallels between these older ways of thinking and newer modes of relating to the world. The United States’ music culture, homeland security, environmental studies, and educational overhaul may be analyzed based on the written projections of American writers from the turn-of-the-twentieth century and beyond. Students explore the ways in which the “hot” topics of today are linked to the changing voices in literature since 1900.

Panel Moderator: Marsha I. Walker, Johnson C. Smith University

Jimnette Williams
Johnson C. Smith University (NC)

Sharika Comfort
Johnson C. Smith University (NC)

Janelle Martin
Johnson C. Smith University (NC)

Dymond Spain
Johnson C. Smith University (NC)
I-14. Panel: Are Young Adults Becoming Series-ously Limited in Their Reading?
Saturday 9:30-10:50  Kings Garden South

Panel Moderator:  Delores Stephens, Morehouse College (GA)

Jonathan Collins
Lance Dixon
Justin Goldsberry
Mario Stephens

K-2. Panel: Critical Perspectives on Black Ice as Memoir
Saturday 1:00-2:20  Benedum

The panelists will consider Black Ice as an illustration of the memoir genre. Cary’s memoir will be analyzed through the prism of such works as: Richard Wright’s Black Boy, Barack Obama’s Dreams of my Father, and Walter Kim’s Lost in the Meritocracy. Each panelist will focus on Black Ice as well as on one of the aforementioned works. An overview of the historical and current significance of the genre will be included.

Moderator: Delores Stephens, Morehouse College (GA)

Jonathan Collins
Lance Dixon
Justin Goldsberry
Mario Stephens
Mercyhurst College members of Sigma Tau Delta traveled abroad to Dungarvan, Ireland over the Spring Term of 2010, where they became immersed in Irish culture as well as Irish literature. In this presentation, 5 Senior English majors will present passages from their final course projects, including work on James Stephen’s The Crock of Gold, James Joyce’s “Evelina,” W.B. Yeats early poetry, and the works of Seamus Heaney. They will then reflect on how their travel abroad experience impacted their scholarship. In fact, they believe the “Irish Voice” they adapted and honed in Dungarvan may be revived and retold across the ocean in Pittsburgh by those who experienced it first hand.”

Panel Moderator: Brian Reed, Mercyhurst College

Elizabeth Geist
Melissa Kirwin
Erin Lewis
Taylor Nickel
Joseph Weidenborner

---

In surveying the preferred modes of literacy education for today’s students, primary through postsecondary, Xi Lambda chapter members have tapped into the global movement to expand literacy in various disciplinary contexts via the use of enhanced multimedia technology, community/corporate partnerships, and the performing and creative arts. Members trace their engagement in hands-on research that has afforded them diverse opportunities to share their love of literature outside the University setting while gaining access to the industrial tools that are, ultimately, shaping the world.

Donisha Bolds
Shantel Horn
Darril Marshall
Darius Melvin

---

This panel analyzes female gender roles during the Medieval and early Renaissance society. By doing some close reading on Marie Antoinette’s Lanval, Sir Gawain and the Green Knight and Shakespeare’s comedies, it is argued that during medieval times women used their sexuality as an avenue to gain power over men.

Robin Renahan
Jessica Roelant

---

The 75-minute panel will discuss the growing trend of electronic books in comparison to the traditional bound and covered works of literature. Throughout the past few years, this new form of reading has swept across the nation and the question remains whether or not the effects of these electronic books are beneficial to readers. In a world that has become increasingly dependent on digital and electronic devices, are electronic books merely one more way that society has become reliant on technology rather than their own abilities? Yet electronic books have opened up new opportunities for readers, providing them with tools to enhance their reading experience. However, it becomes debatable whether or not these electronic books are valuable to society.

Moderator: Elisa Beshero-Bondar, The University of Pittsburgh, Greensburg

Randi Little
Scott Miller
Alexis Miskalis
Sarah O’Neil
Drew Storm

---

Panels Session L: Saturday 26 March 2:30-3:30

L-3. Panel: Electronic Books: A Suitable Replacement for the "Real Thing?"

The University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg (PA)

The University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg (PA)

The University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg (PA)

The University of Pittsburgh at Greensburg (PA)
With the literature community embracing graphic novels as a serious art form the study of visual literacy is gaining momentum. But what exactly is visual literacy, and how does it differ from traditional literacy? Join us for a discussion on how to read beyond words.

Roberto Martinez
Sadie Ben Arie
Christopher Dunkin
Andrew Moser

Metropolitan State College of Denver
Metropolitan State College of Denver
Metropolitan State College of Denver
Alumni Epsilon
L-13. Panel: The Harry Potter Decade: Beyond Entertainment
Saturday 2:30-3:30  Kings Garden South

“Harry Potter has cast a spell on a generation of readers and movie goers. This panel will explore the international sensation of this series in its multi-media forms with specific focus on the books, films, websites, and new theme park to better understand Potter’s appeal. From these sources this panel will discuss the themes of tolerance, feminism, truth, friendship, and good vs. evil which are at the core of the Potter series. Is the popularity of this series a result of media marketing or is there truly something magical about the characters and lessons found within the series that has enchanted millions?”

Panel Moderator: Dr. Jodi Radosh, Alvernia University

Katy Eby
Megan McCue
Jessica Heller
Jessica Slavin
J. D. Sellgren
Alvernia University (PA)

Sheila Byrd
Randy Cross
Calhoun Community College (AL)

L-14. Panel: Literary Detectives: Gravely Concerned
Saturday 2:30-3:30  Le Bateau

Author John Baine and Professor Randy Cross tell us where the dead bodies lie in a discussion of how researchers uncover the final resting places of these dearly departed authors. Dr. Sheila Byrd, Executive Director for Sigma Kappa Delta, will talk about the role of Sigma Kappa Delta in this project.

Panel Moderator: Jill Chadwick, Calhoun Community College

Sheila Byrd
Randy Cross
Calhoun Community College (AL)

L-15. L-15
Saturday 2:30-3:30  Brigade

L-16. Panel: Similarities Between Lorene Cary and Walter Kirn
Saturday 2:30-3:30  Rivers

Our panel will discuss the works of Lorene Cary and Walter Kirn. Both writers discuss the problems of social and economic exclusivity associated with education in elitist American institutions. The similarities between Cary’s experience as a young, black woman, and the struggles faced by white, male Kirn, allow us to query the basic problems of exclusion.

Kathlena Waller
Joshua Prestin
Gabriela Stanciu
Lindsey Bramson
Northwest Nazarene University (ID)